CVPDC Seeks Suggestions For Drug Abuse Projects

Suggestions for needed drug abuse projects are presently being sought from State and local agencies, programs and individuals throughout the Commonwealth by a committee of the Virginia Drug Abuse Advisory Council.

This action is being taken as a result of the availability of approximately $700,000 to be spent on drug abuse projects within the next few years. The funds represent the unclaimed portion of drug overcharge monies resulting from a suit brought by the Commonwealth of Virginia against several drug manufacturers on charges of price-fixing and were awarded to the Virginia Drug Abuse Control Advisory Council.

The Central Virginia Planning District Commission's Drug Abuse Control Advisory Committee has agreed to forward suggestions to an ad hoc committee of the State Council. Local programs may not submit ideas directly to the Council, but rather should direct them to the Drug Abuse Control Advisory Committee of the Commission.

Details on criteria and form of submission may be obtained from L.T. Townes, Drug Abuse Planner at the Central Virginia Planning District Commission offices at 2311 Memorial Avenue, Lynchburg, or by telephoning 845-3491.

The deadline for all suggestions to reach the ad hoc committee in Richmond is August 19. The committee's recommendations will then be presented to the full State Council at its September meeting.

The Pastor Speaks

I had the meanest mother in the whole world!!

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs and toast. When other kids had Cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you can guess, my dinner was different from other kids too.

My mother insisted on knowing where we were all the time. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted that if we would be gone for an hour, that we be gone for an hour or less.

I am ashamed to admit it, but she actually had the nerve "to break the child labor law." She made us work. We had to wash all the dishes, make the beds, learn to cook and all sorts of odd things. I believe she lay awake nights thinking of mean things to do to us. She always insisted on us telling the truth - the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the car horn for us to come running. She embarrassed us no end by making our friends and dates come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention that my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, but my old-fashioned mother refused to let me date until I was 15.

My mother was a complete failure as a mother. None of us has ever been arrested. And who do we have to thank for this terrible way we turned out? You're right! Our Mean Mother!

Look at all the things we missed. We never got to take part in a riot and a million and one other things our friends did. She made us grow up into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

The Sunday School Lesson

HERBERT C. BRADSHAW
P. O. BOX 1833
DURHAM, N.C. 27702

Comment on the International Sunday School lesson for Sunday, August 11, 1974.

Topic: Christ Above All.

Scripture: Colossians 1: 15-29; Philippians 2: 5-11.

In him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, making peace by the blood of his cross. Colossians 1: 19-20.

The background of this week's International Sunday School lesson is the same as that of last week's, the heresy within the Christian church at Colossae. Those who subscribed to this heresy thought that man had access to God in ways other than through Christ and particularly through heavenly bodies which Paul called thrones, dominions, principalities, authorities. They also taught that Christ alone was not sufficient for salvation. Thus this doctrine denied the preeminence of Christ in man's redemption and life.

The passage in Colossians on which this lesson is based contradicts this concept which makes Christ only one of many avenues to God and deprives Christianity of its distinctiveness as the witness to the supreme revelation of God to humankind. A passage from Philippians with a similar emphasis compliments this sections of the Colossian letter.

Paul does not deny the existence of the heavenly bodies which some taught provided access to God. Rather he declares the preeminence of Christ over all of them, for all these things, as well as everything else, were created in Him and through Him and for Him. Instead of being superior to Christ as avenues through which people may come to God or even equal to Christ, they are inferior and subject to Him. "He is before all things, and in him all things hold together." He is "the first-born of all creation." Thus Paul presents Christ as supreme and preeminent in the creation of the universe.

Not only is Christ supreme and preeminent in creation. He is also supreme and preeminent in redemption. ". . . all the fullness of God was pleased . . . through him to reconcile to himself all things . . . making peace by the blood of his cross." The reconciliation accomplished by Christ through the shedding of His blood on the cross was cosmic in its scope. Nothing in creation lies beyond the opportunity for reconciliation which Christ makes possible.

But reconciliation is not only universal; it is also personal. So Paul applies it to the believers in Colossae and it may be so applied to believers . every. where: "And you, who were once estranged (from God) and hostile in mind (toward God), doing evil deeds, he has now reconciled in his body of flesh by his death . . ." There is purpose in this personal reconciliation: ". . . in order to present you holy and blameless and irreproachable before him . . ." In order for Christ to achieve the purpose of reconciliation which He accomplished by His death, it is necessary for the believer to "continue in the faith, stable and steadfast, not shifting from the hope of the gospel which you heard . . ." Hence the need to correct the erroneous teaching and the justification for writing this Letter to the Colossians, in which Paul reiterates what Peter told the Sanhedrin in Jerusalem long before, "There is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved."

Christ is also present in glory. So Paul teaches in his Letter to the Philippians. Christ willingly left His state in the form of God and of equality with God to become man, and more, a servant, and to experience death on the cross to bring about reconciliation between God and man and to provide salvation for humankind. In consequence "God has highly exalted him and bestowed upon him the name which is above every name . . ."

Christ's preeminence is significant to the Christian today as it was in Pauls day. He alone offers the way of access to God. In Him alone is the salvation people need for reconciliation with God. It was the reason why the late John Peyton Mahone, so long the principal of McGuire's University School in Richmond, to begin each school day by reading to the assembled students a passage of Scripture and a prayer. In the prayer he frequently used he contained this petition, which beautifully expressed man need and Christ's preeminence: "Show us our need of a Savior and the all-sufficiency of Jesus. Help us to come to Thee with truly penitent hearts, with lively faith, and Thou shalt surely give us pardon and peace in Him."

I am trying to raise my children to stand a little taller, and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

You see, thank God, He gave the meanest mother in the world - - - from this I would say the country doesn't need a good 5 cent cigar. it nees more mean mothers and fathers.

Are you really saving money or just forgetting to spend it?

The average American earns more than half a million dollars during his working career. But you couldn't tell it from looking at the average American bank account.

Where it all goes.

Sure, there are expenses and necessities of life which take a big chunk out of everyone's earnings. But the fact is that most of us let our fortunes just slip away. Bit by bit.

Buying a little something we don't need here. Wasting a little something we do need there.

Until what we call our life's savings are really more like what we somehow neglected to spend.

The "Save Now—Pay Later" plan.

But it doesn't have to be that way. Because at Fidelity National Bank, we have a new plan which can help even the most reluctant saver put it away in a big way.

It's called "Save Now—Pay Later." And it's designed to help you do just that—save on the small stuff now so you can afford the big things later. College, a house, or retirement, for example.

Like most successful plans, it's really quite simple.

The first thing you do is open a Fidelity passbook savings plan (Or if you already have one, start remembering it's there.) It offers you the flexibility of withdrawing your money at any time you need it, an interest rate of 5% (the highest the law allows), and a physical reminder to save: your Fidelity passbook.

As well as your future financial needs.

Leave the hardest part to us.

Of course, then comes the hardest part—actually saving.

And if you have a problem with forgetting or not bothering to do it sometimes, we have an answer: leave it to us.

Each month, we can automatically transfer any amount you choose from your checking to your savings account. That way, you don't have to worry about saving (or not saving). And at 5% interest, you'll be surprised how fast your money will pile up when the deposits are automatic.

Saving the best for last.

But whether you choose to make your deposits yourself or have us make them for you, this is one way to make sure that your financial future will be something to look forward to. Expectantly. Because no matter what happens, it'll help you save the best part of your money for when you really need it. (Which is the last thing most of us are likely to do on our own.)

So, if you'd like to stop nickel and dimeing yourself to death and start putting away a nice piece of change, stop by any Fidelity office and get all the details of our "Save Now—Pay Later" plan. It won't make your fortune for you. But it will help you keep it.
